CHICHEWA-ENGLISH TRANSLATION GLOSSARY FOR DEVELOPMENT WORK

www.translationglossary.org

Introduction

Welcome to the Chichewa-English translation glossary for international development work. This is a very special document. It has been produced by local people in Lilongwe and Zomba, none of whom are professional translators. However, they all had experience of development work, and they knew the challenges of translating development terminology in a way that makes sense to ‘ordinary people’. They saw the need for more language support in the Malawian development sector, and wanted to help. So, they volunteered to participate in a workshop to write an early draft of this glossary. Through lively debate, they chose the terms to be included and the simplest ways in which these could be translated. The translations reflect their unique knowledge of the local vernacular and the development priorities at the grassroots. The result is the first comprehensive glossary in the international development sector that has been produced through participatory methods.

Who will find this glossary useful?

Anyone with any interest or involvement in international development in Malawi should find this glossary useful. Likewise, it will be a helpful resource if you work with English and Chewa in Mozambique, Zambia, Zimbabwe and elsewhere.

A long-standing problem for development stakeholders is that commercial dictionaries in Chichewa-English omit many words that are essential to international development work. For example, some of the terms that are not included in the best-selling dictionary on the market include sustainable development, resilience, social exclusion and mainstreaming. All of those terms can be found in this glossary, along with many more that are not currently available in print.

Learn more on our website

You can download the glossary on our website www.translationglossary.org. It is a living document, so please check back from time-to-time to take advantage of the updates. Note that the glossary will always be free to download. This is a non-profit initiative.

Do you disagree with any of the translations, and have alternative suggestions? Please join our Facebook group and share your thoughts (details on our website). We aim continually improve the glossary by incorporating the wisdom of our online community.

Are you interested in creating your own glossary, perhaps in another language? Good news: our website contains a free handbook that explains the entire process step-by-step. You don't need to be a professional translator. You just need a love of language, and enthusiastic people to help out!

Please share this glossary and your stories

Feel free to share this glossary far and wide to anyone who might find it useful, as long as you do so for non-commercial purposes (CC BY-NC-SA 4.0). You can share it online or photocopy it.

We'd love for you to let us know how you have used the glossary, and how it has helped you with your work and day-to-day life. We'll make sure that the workshop participants hear all about it! (check out their names in the acknowledgements section) Please get in touch and share your stories with us.
